

Privacy Policy

Last Updated: May 26, 2017

By using TellToo, you agree to our privacy policy.

You

---

What data do you collect about me?

When you possess a registered account, TellToo collects the following data about you:

- A. Your username.
- B. Your password.
- C. Your email.
- D. Your profile picture.
- E. The stories you create.
- F. The tags you follow.
- G. The users that follow you.
- H. The stories that you have recently viewed.
- I. Statistics related to the stories you've created (see Your Stories).
- J. Purchases you have made using TellToo.
- K. Your collections of stories.

You can still consume TellToo's content without registering an account and browse anonymously, but you'll have access to limited features and will not be able to create stories.

Why do you collect this data?

We collect this data to personalize your experience (for example--how could you follow tags if we didn't know which tags you were even following?), enhance your experience, and to improve customer service.

How do you protect my data?

At the moment, we currently run the server-side of TellToo on Google's Firebase service. Rest assured; it's safe.

Do you disclose any of this data to third parties?

No. We will not sell or share your data with anybody else, unless we believe that doing so is required in compliance of the law.

Your Stories

---

TellToo collects the following data about stories:

- A. The story itself and the content therein (audio, images).
- B. The username of the creator of the story.
- C. A count of how many people have listened to the story.
- D. The length of the story's availability and its date of creation.
- E. The tags of the story.
- F. The users that have collected the story.